

MODEL ACCUSES ARTIST, TELLS OF "STUDIO" ATTACK

Hartley Lured Many Girls by
"Ad." to "Pose for Head Drawing."

100 REPLIED, HE SAYS.

Denies That He Mistreated Any
Except His Accuser—Others
Subpoenaed.

Wane Hartley, who is also known as Hoffman, and has a sign hanging out at No. 321 East sixteenth street calling attention to the fact that he is an "artist," was today held in $2,500 bail in Centre Street Police Court for examination next Wednesday, on a charge of attracting girls to his "studio" for improper purposes. Assemblyman Harold Spielberg of the Empire State Surety Company, who was in court, stated that his company would go on the accused man's bond.

The complainant is Miss Laura Murray, a professional model, of No. 239 West One Hundred and Eighth street. She wrote to District Attorney Whitman, calling attention to Hartley's advertisement for models for head drawings. Later she told Assistant District Attorney Reynolds that she went to Hartley's place ten days ago, was engaged at $12.50 a week, and that on her second visit, when Hartley insisted that she pose in the nude, he had attacked her. Then she made the complaint to the police.

But other girls also figure in the story. Hartley was arrested last night by Detective Lieutenant Flood. He says he is twenty-nine years old, a native of Germany and came to America nine months ago. He says he is only a beginner as an artist, that he advertised for models because he supplies another artist with portraits for his work, and that he had never attempted liberties with any of the girls except Miss Murray.

After hearing Miss Murray's story Mr. Reynolds told her to keep an engagement she had with Hartley yesterday. Hartley was not at home, but in the bedroom that serves as studio Miss Murray found a pretty seventeen-year-old girl alone.

TOLD ONE GIRL TO "COME BACK, BUT ALONE."
"Oh, I am so glad you came," said the girl. "I felt like crying. This is an awful place."

"Don't be frightened," Miss Murray whispered into the ears of the girl, who came from Flatbush in answer to the "ad." for a model. "I have two good friends near."

The two compared notes. The Flatbush girl had not met Hartley. More girls came asking to see Hartley. No effort was made to detain them, because it was feared Hartley might be frightened away.

Shortly after 3 P. M. two young girls arrived at the house. They said they had been there the day before and that Hartley had asked one of them to call again the next day.

"He told me to come alone," she said. "but on my mother's advice I brought my friend along."

A little later Hartley hurried up the stoop. There he met the four girls. Several others followed him. He was talking with them in the hallway when Detective Flood appeared.

Hartley practically admitted that Miss Murray's story is true. He said he had "studied painting some in Germany," but admitted he is no portrait artist.

ADmits HE MISTREATED HIS ACCUSER.

Hartley denied he had ill-treated other young women who had come to his bedroom studio.

"I only mistreated one," he said, "and she is in this room now."

The two young women who had come to the room last night how they had met Hartley the day before.

"He didn't do anything to me to come back here," said one, who gave a Division street address as that of her home. "He told me I was too fat, but he wanted my companion to come to-day."

At the Criminal Court building Mr. Reynolds interviewed the girls and then issued subpoenas for a half dozen others.

HUSTLE ON SUBWAY

IN ESTIMATE BOARD.

Practically Settled, Mayor Says, and Final Action is Possible

NEXT WEEK.

The Board of Estimate took up today the subway project and went on record as believing that no time is lost in deciding quickly on the offer of the Interborough. The Board gave President McAneny authority to present a joint report to the next meeting of the Board, when final action will be taken.

When the question was brought up Borough President Miller asked: "Is the subway matter now finally settled?"

"Practically," answered the Mayor.

"At least, I hope so."

The Mayor then put the McAneny motion for authority, which was granted unanimously. The Public Service Commission, in a meeting of the whole, behind closed doors today took action on the Interborough offer. A report will be made public.

Now Gen. George B. Dyer.

ALBANY, Feb. 29.—Gov. Dix has appointed Col. George Hathorne Dyer of the Twelfth Regiment Infantry as Brigadier General in command of the First Brigade, vice Brig.-Gen. George Moore Smith, retired. Gen. Dyer has been connected with the National Guard since
